IELTS Speaking Mock Test #12

Part 1 - Introduction:

Q. What's your name?

A. My name is Anton Bruckner and you can call me Anton.

Q. Where are you from?

A. I am from Frankfurt, Germany. Frankfurt is located in the federal state of Hesse which lies in the heart of central Germany.

Q. How do you think the Internet will change entertainment in the future?

A. Internet has already changed that. Video sharing site like YouTube, social networking site like Facebook are two great media for entertainment for people. The internet TVs are replacing the old TV sets and people can now watch 3D movies sitting in their drawing rooms. The popular music websites will replace the CD players and people will listen and share their favourite playlists on the go. The movies are easy to download, they comes with far better resolution and picture quality and people will watch movies in small devices like cell phone and wrist watch. Reading an entertainment magazine, listening to favourite music stations would be just a finger tap away.

Q. Do you use internet very often? What for?

A. Yes, I use internet almost every day. I use it to update the blog I own, to check the emails, to find the updates of my friends in social media networks, to watch YouTube video, to share my picture, to talk or chat with my friends etc. In fact my activities on internet far more vast than the things I have mentioned.

Q. How about in the future? How important the internet will become in our daily lives?

A. In future we would be greatly dependant on internet. From simple Google search to utility bill payment, from submitting class assignment to booking air tickets, we will rely on internet. We will also use it in our education and communication sectors. This day is not far when we will rely on internet to purchase everything we need in our life. The job, education, news, entertainment, survey, research all will rely on this technology. A significant proportion of professionals and businessmen would rely on internet as their main source of earning and business. Traditional marketing and brick and mortar business would be replaced by Internet marketing and ecommerce. There will be pretty few things that we would be able to do without the dependency on internet in the future.

Part 3 of the IELTS Speaking Module:

Q. What are the differences of watching movies and reading books?

A. A movie is an audio-visual presentation while a book is a composition of written words. They are both great sources of entertainment and knowledge. However, reading a book in my opinion is more effective than watching a movie. A great number of actors as well as producer, screen writer, director and other staffs are required to finally produce a movie while book is the printed version of the writing of a writer.

Movies present a story using different actors and actresses and the acting is captured using a camera and then finally edited before releasing, while the books are mainly printed after being edited and corrected. We can watch movies with others but we usually read books alone.

Movies are the sources of easy entertainment and people naturally love to watch movies as pure source of entertainment although there are numerous movies that have deep underlying themes and lessons. On the contrary, most books enhance the knowledge and imagination power of readers and preferred by book lovers only.

Q. Which one is more powerful? Why?

A. In my opinion books are more powerful. A book is aimed to deliver a story, lesson and is a great source of information. Reading books enhances our knowledge, imagination and our horizon of wisdom. Most of the books are packed with the experience and imagination of writers and are the witness of history and time. Reading books is far better in terms of enhancing knowledge in my opinion.

While watching a movie, we mainly concentrate on the story and visual presentation of it. That gives us pure entertainment but in terms of provoking our brain, it is less effective than reading books. Books presents us words and with this a hypothetical world that we need to imagine in our mind. In case of movies, things are already seen; there are little scope to use our imagination power.

Q. Do you like to watch movie staying at home in Television or in a theater? Why?

A. I mostly prefer watching movies at home on television. It is more comfortable and convenient. I can watch movies at any time and place. In a theater, I have to go to the theater and wait for the movie to start. It is more expensive and I have to share the seat with other people. I also have to wear a mask and gloves to prevent the spread of COVID-19. Therefore, I prefer watching movies at home on television.

but at home I have more control on what movie to watch and when. I can even change the movie if I find it boring but I do not have this option in a movie theatre.

With the advancement of technology and internet, we have now large smart TVs that offer almost similar experience that we can have in a theatre.

Q. How can movies help up to shape our society?

A. Movies reach to a large segment of people in a society and people often watch movies. Thus the movie can be an effective media for entertainment as well as tools for changing our society for the better. A good movie that focuses on the pressing issues of a society can create awareness of the problem and can also suggest some solutions.

If movies are based on real event and historical facts, people would learn about their history and past that might help them to become better citizens. Movie actors and actresses are quite popular in many societies and they can pass moral lessons to their fans.

Movies reflect the society and the people as a whole and thus have a great influence to shape the mentality of the people. It is not unusual that people would try to mimic the personality, behaviour, costumes of their famous actors and movie producers can use this as a positive tool to foster a better new generation.
